Case study exercises: Preliminary Statements

During this 2.5-day workshop, teams will be asked to use their case study for all exercises, establish a consensus, present the results during the plenary, and briefly document ALL versions of their work sessions.

The 5 exercises offered to teams on a random basis are inspired by the Mongolian “New Recovery Policy”. Each case presented must be considered as a program linked to the policy and designed as such.

Objective: From sessions 2 to 5, team will be asked to design one component according to RBM principles and practices. Components will be aggregated to finally come to a complete program design.

Case Studies

1. Rural development: Support to the sustainable growth of livestock and agricultural production.
2. Urban services: Improving the quality and standards of public transportation in the capital city Ulaanbaatar.
3. Public services: Contribution to digitalization of government services
4. Public administration: Improvement of state-owned enterprises.
5. Governance: Design of an anti-corruption initiative.
